Fund Objective

The Sub-Fund pursues at all times and in relation to the entirety of the assets an absolute return strategy which means that its target is to achieve a positive return under all market conditions. The aim of the Sub-Fund is to generate long term capital appreciation and income by implementing active positions in a diversified range of assets including cash, equities, bonds, currencies and indirectly, property and commodities. Investments will be selected by the Investment Adviser with input from a team of specialist analysts and quantitative models.

Fund Comment

After an extremely disappointing second quarter, the fund underperformed in July. Over the past few months, heightened concerns over public finances in Europe and fears of a sharp slowdown in global economic growth have given way to a more sanguine assessment of the state of the European banking sector and renewed demand for risk assets. During this period, we have found it difficult to construct a portfolio that is both well balanced given the range of possible scenarios and capable of dealing with these sharp swings in investor sentiment.

In July, the fund maintained a number of positions to hedge against our 'European Contagion' scenario. Included in this group are a short European equity position (eurostoxx and banks) and long Germany/short Italian bond pair. During the month, the results of the European bank stress tests were greeted positively and were accompanied by improving confidence surrounding public sector finances. As a consequence, the spreads between yields on German government bonds and those of European countries with sizeable current account deficits (e.g. Greece, Spain and Portugal) narrowed and equities recovered their poise. Our European hedges performed poorly in this environment.

At the same time, positions in place to benefit from the stronger growth scenario failed to offset these losses. In particular, a short bond position, which was expected to deliver positive results should investors' appetite for risk improve, failed to perform as expected. Bond markets have remained relatively immune to supply issues and the movement in yields in July suggest that bond investors, at least, remain concerned about economic headwinds and see few upward pressures on inflation.

During this difficult period our strategy is to remain focussed on fundamental economic factors, cyclical drivers and identifying mis-priced assets capable of performing under a range of outcomes. We continue to remain concerned about the fiscal position of many Southern European countries and are analysing a number of indicators pointing to waning activity in the US and elsewhere. Positions are also in place to protect the fund against periods when risk appetite rebounds from oversold levels. By remaining faithful to this process, we are confident that performance will soon return to positive territory.
